- (Award 2 marks for the correct identification. Award 1 mark for a partial answer like "oral sources".)

(b) Advantages of Oral Traditions (4 Marks)

- Award up to 2 marks for each well-explained advantage.
- Advantage 1: It is a vital tool for preserving African history and heritage, especially for societies without a written tradition, ensuring that cultural knowledge, values, and customs are passed down through generations.
- Advantage 2: It provides a rich, detailed, and human perspective on historical events, including the social, political, and cultural life of a community from the viewpoint of its own people, which is often missing from colonial written accounts.
- (Accept any other relevant advantage.)

(c) Limitations of Relying Solely on Oral Traditions (4 Marks)

- Award up to 2 marks for each well-explained limitation.
- Limitation 1: Susceptibility to Bias and Distortion: Stories can be altered over time due to a narrator's personal biases, memory lapses, or the desire to glorify their ancestors or clan, making the historical account less objective.
- Limitation 2: Lack of Chronological Accuracy: It is often difficult to establish precise dates and timelines for events, making it hard for historians to create a concrete chronological framework.

- Farmer B (Patrilineal): In a patrilineal society, property and inheritance are passed down through the father's line. A man's property is traditionally inherited by his own sons.

(b) Reason for Faster Development of Centralized States (4 Marks)

- Award up to 4 marks for a comprehensive explanation or 2 marks for a key point.
- Centralized states like the Mali Empire developed faster because they had strong, effective leadership (kings/emperors) who could organize labor, manage resources, and maintain law and order.
- They had a structured administration and military which allowed them to control vast territories, collect taxes/tribute (e.g., from trade), and defend against external threats. This political stability and control over resources fostered economic growth (e.g., controlling the trans-Saharan gold and salt trade) and allowed for the rapid expansion of the state. Decentralized societies lacked this unified command structure, making it difficult to organize large-scale projects or defend against well-organized invaders.

(c) Centralized Kingdoms in Central/South Africa (2 Marks)

- Award 1 mark for each correct name. Any two of the following:
- Central Africa: The Kingdom of Kongo, The Luba Empire, The Lunda Empire.
- South Africa: The Zulu Kingdom (under Shaka), The Mutapa Empire (Great Zimbabwe).

8. (a) Economic Reasons for Seyyid Said's Move to Zanzibar (4 Marks)

- Award up to 2 marks for each well-explained reason.
- Reason 1: Strategic Location: Zanzibar was located in the heart of the Indian Ocean trade routes. Its deep-water port was ideal for controlling both the monsoon winds to the east (Asia) and the trade routes to the African interior.
- Reason 2: Lucrative Trade Hub: Zanzibar was the main trading center for ivory, cloves, and slaves, which were in high demand in the Middle East, India, and Europe. The Sultan wanted direct control over this profitable commercial network to maximize his revenue.

(b) Commercial Crops Introduced by the Omanis (2 Marks)

- Award 1 mark for each correct crop.
- Cloves and Coconuts.
